He proceeded to refer to the diplomatic negotiations for the evacuation of Tien-Tain, which, he said, was not a purely military question. If Tien-Tsin was immediately evacuated the provisional Government would cease to exist and the Powers would be left without a guarantee of the completion of the scheme whereby communication would be kept up along the Pet River between Tien-Tsin and the legation guards at Pekin.

With reference to the indemnity, Baron von Richthofen remarked that it required 600,000,000 tacks to satisfy the claims, instead of 450,000,000, which China had agreed to pay, and the Powers were negotiating in regard to the apportionment of this defi-ciency.

CONGRESSMAN GILLETT EXCORIATES WHEELER.

The more disgraceful such utterances were the more notoriety they achieved, he said. Such remarks addressed to a foreign country naturally made an impression abroad. People there knew nothing of the man who gave utterance to them. They only knew of his official position as a member of the American House of Representatives. On that account, he said, the stigma of the gentleman's speech attached to all of the members here. If every one of the gentleman's friends told him what he thought of him. Mr. Gillett said, there perhaps would be some strained friendships. At this point pathy with Mr. Wheeler's remarks.

This brought Mr. Thayer of Massachusetts to his feet with another statement that Mr. Wheeler spoke for himself. It was unjust and unfair, he declared, to charge the Democracy with being in sympathy with his utterances.

"One after another." observed Mr. Gillet, with an amused smile, while his colleagues were convulsed with laughter. Then TALBERT OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Our relations with Germany recently had been almost strained, and here was an opportu-nity to display our friendship. Just at this time he be-lieved that it was proper to send embassies to England and Spain to attend the cor nations, although he was not in full sympa-thy, generally speaking, with such displays,

Mr. Wheeler declared that those statements were absolutely incorrect. He said President Buchanan had received the Prince as a private individual, and had borne the expense out of his own pocket; he had even paid the cost of a Government revenue cutter used on that occasion. He said that he never had objected to receiving a distin-guished foreigner with proper considera-tion. What he objected to, was the spirit of truculency and sycophancy that had characterized this, and the preceding administration, especially in the conduct of the State Department.

Washington, Feb. 18.-It was agreed by he Senate to-day that a final vote on the Philippine tariff bill and the pending amendments should be taken next Monday after-noon at 4 o'clock. The only stipulation made by the minority was that the last day's debate should be devoted to speeches not exceeding fifteen minutes in duration. Senator Wellington of Maryland spoke today in opposition to the pending bill and Senator Stewart of Nevada in support of the measure.

Reasons for Opposition Mr. Wellington's address covered the Philppine question generally. He always had been a Republican, he said, a believer in the system of protection and a supporter of a gold standard of currency, but he had come to the parting of the ways with his party in 1858, when it developed "its imperialistic tendencies."

He opposed the panding tariff bill because he did not think Congress had the right to enact legislation by which people were taxed without representation, and governed without their consent.

Without the Spanish war, he said, Cuba night have been free, might have enjoyed, indeed, a larger measure of freedom and independence than she was enjoying now of would enjoy in the future. The only thing Cuba had been taught was how a posta official could embezzle $50,000.

Philippine Policy Drifting

Philippine Pollcy Drifting.

Mr. Wellington said that after the ratification of the treaty of Paris the American administration had had no definite Philippine policy. "It has been drifting," said he "without aim and without policy." He ridiculed Mr. Long's assertion that Congress should make no promises to the Filippinos, that it "should not mortgage the unknown future."

The tide of morals, he maintained, had become low, indeed, if a legislative promise could not be kept.

In discussing the Oriental situation, Mr. Wellington indicated a bellef that a great war was imminent, probably between Itussia and Japan, and due, very likely, to the breaking up of Cilina.

Mr. Wellington, referring to the war in South Africa, where the Boer was "struggling for freedom in his own territory," said;
